

Eric M. Kramer

Retired Partner

Uniondale

Eric Kramer was an estate and tax planning attorney representing high-net-worth families and individuals, closely held business owners, and real estate developers for more than 35 years. Recently retired, Eric prepared wills and trusts, consulted on prenuptial agreements, and managed estate and trust administration for his clients.

As a certified public accountant, Eric applied deep experience with federal and New York state taxing authorities to provide sophisticated tax advice to clients. He focused on managing the tax consequences involved in transferring wealth to future generations. Eric also advised clients on business succession planning, including important tax implications of the various methods of transfer.

As a practicing lawyer, Eric was known for his professionalism and compassion for clients as they make important decisions related to the transfer of their legacy to others.

Experience

- Guided individuals and their families to address important tax matters across the estate planning process.
- Advised individuals and their families on charitable giving through gifting and trusts.
- Advised personal representatives, trustees, and beneficiaries on their fiduciary duties.
- Counseled the owners of closely held businesses in succession planning, matching the best possible planning vehicles to each situation.
- Drafted prenuptial agreements to establish important parameters surrounding premarital assets and wealth.
