Evan Feder is a trusts and estates attorney advising individuals and families across all aspects of estate planning and estate and trust administration. Evan provides thoughtful guidance for estate plans, wills, trusts, health care proxies and advanced directives. He also counsels executors and trustees through all aspects of estate and trust administration, including guiding fiduciaries through the probate process.

Understanding that estate planning is deeply personal, Evan builds lasting relationships with clients to help them identify goals for sharing their legacy. He combines this client-centered approach with strategic tax planning to efficiently preserve and transfer assets across generations.

Prior to joining Farrell Fritz, Evan was a trusts and estates associate in a regional full-service law firm where he set a strong foundation for client service, strategic estate planning and providing trusted insights.
