Lisa Vaccaro is a banking and finance lawyer representing financial institutions and business in all aspects of commercial finance transactions. Lisa advises clients in structuring, documenting, and negotiating a wide variety of commercial transactions from unsecured lines of credit to secured syndicated multi-borrower transactions, including ESOP facilities, acquisition financing, and tax-exempt financing.

Lisa has extensive knowledge of intercreditor issues and other areas impacting financings, including cross-border issues, specialized collateral (such as healthcare and intellectual property), and foreign situated collateral and entities. Her confident demeanor and excellent reputation as a thought leader support Lisa's role as a trusted adviser in corporate transactional matters including negotiating and preparing documents in connection with equipment financing, interest rate swap transactions, and other general business contracts.

Lisa's impact goes far beyond her legal work, with immeasurable contributions to the firm. Lisa is a mentor to many, a champion and face of the firm's internal connectivity committee ("Farrell FISH"), and an advocate for advancing women at the firm. She is often found at the forefront of women's organizations, taking many female attorneys under her wing and making introductions and paving the way for them. Prior to the pandemic, Lisa (along with 3 other female attorneys at the firm) co-founded a real estate and finance professional women's group to promote networking and collaboration, bringing together people with all different backgrounds connected to the industry.
