Noreen Gilroy represents individuals, families, fiduciaries and beneficiaries in disputes involving Will and trust contests, including probate and administration proceedings, contested accountings, and related supreme court actions. Noreen draws on her experience with estate planning, estate and trust administration, and real estate to help clients navigate issues involving the administration and disposition of assets.

Before joining Farrell Fritz, Noreen was an associate with a boutique firm focused on trusts and estates, where she represented clients in matters involving litigation, estate planning, estate and trust administration, and related real estate matters.

Earlier in her career, Noreen served as counsel to school districts across Long Island, representing them in matters involving education and municipal law, labor and employment law, and contract disputes. This experience informs how she advises clients through challenging legal matters.
