Will Meyer is a tax certiorari lawyer focusing on real property taxation reduction and abatement. Will represents developers, owners, and tenants of commercial and residential properties and helps them to strategically reduce their property tax burden in New York State.

Will regularly negotiates and litigates property tax reductions across New York State including Nassau, Suffolk, Westchester and Rockland Counties and municipalities throughout Western New York and the Hudson Valley. He also represents property owners before the New York City Tax Commission and in Eminent Domain Proceedings before the Court of Claims. These cases customarily include aspects of real estate, leasing, environmental and title law. Will has successfully challenged property taxes on a wide variety of properties including residential condominiums and cooperatives, multi-family, retail & office properties, warehouse & industrial properties, specialized properties like golf clubs & marinas and even high-end residential cases.

With three decades of experience in New York's real estate industry, Will is a recognized speaker who delivers numerous seminars on property tax reduction strategies. Will also regularly advises developers and investors on property tax projections along with incentive programs that can provide long-term property tax savings for his clients.
