LYLE MAHLER

Farrell Fritz, PC

Lyle Mahler is a partner in the corporate practice group at Farrell Fritz, PC. Mahler counsels large and small businesses and individual owners and investors in connection with a variety of general corporate and transactional matters, including mergers and acquisitions, equity investments, and joint venture arrangements with a special emphasis on real estate joint ventures. In addition, he negotiates and prepares complex shareholder and operating agreements and various commercial contracts.

Mahler also has extensive experience representing lenders in secured and unsecured loan transactions, including syndicated and asset-based loan facilities, and is often requested to provide advice on complex structuring issues.

Efficient delivery of services – meaning responsiveness and cost effectiveness – coupled with a high quality work product, are vital to competing effectively, Mahler said.

“This is true whether we serve clients locally on Long Island, regionally, nationally or globally,” he said. “Certainly technology drives much of our efficiency. No matter where or how our attorneys meet with clients, whether it is in one of our offices, at the client’s home or place of business, or virtually, our technology permits us to provide seamless and consistent service.”

Where it may be more efficient for some clients, the firm also provides an online client portal where documents and information may be uploaded and shared among multiple parties, Mahler added.

“Farrell Fritz is also committed to keeping our clients and peers informed of legal developments through client alerts and blogs, which have enabled us to develop relationships with a wide geographic market,” he said.

Efficient productivity is also driven by having strong experience in a particular matter or industry, Mahler noted.

“Clients see this as a key benefit of working with Farrell Fritz,” he said. “Over the years, we have built teams and hired attorneys with particular experience so that we can efficiently deliver sophisticated yet practical advice to our clients. In addition, the relationships we have built by living, working, and volunteering in our local communities add to the value we can bring to clients.”

Mahler is active in the Long Island business community, participating as a member of the business advisory board of a prominent regional bank and serving on the board of directors of the Turnaround Management Association – Long Island Chapter. He is also active in the Long Island charitable community, devoting his time to many local charities and events, including serving as a member of the Hospice Care Network’s finance committee and coaching his children’s sports teams.

He earned a juris doctor from the Fordham University School of Law and a bachelor’s degree, cum laude, from the University at Buffalo.
