UNIONDALE, NY Farrell Fritz, P.C. has appointed Patrick Collins, Lyle Mahler, Adam Miller and Lisa Vaccaro as counsel.

Collins concentrates in bankruptcy, creditors' rights and commercial litigation. He joined the firm as an associate in August 1999. Collins is based in the firm's Uniondale office.

Collins represents debtors, secured and unsecured creditors, landlords, purchasers of assets and other parties in bankruptcy court proceedings and out-of-court workouts and debt restructurings. He defends preference and fraudulent conveyance actions as well as claims arising out of failed business transactions. Collins also frequently represents parties to commercial litigation in federal courts.

Prior to joining Farrell Fritz, Collins worked as an engineer for a prominent aerospace company and also worked for a large Dallas, law firm with a national bankruptcy practice.

Mahler concentrates in general corporate matters and loan transactions. He joined the firm as an associate in March 1999 and is based in the firm's Melville office.

Mahler regularly counsels businesses on mergers and acquisitions and joint venture arrangements. He has extensive experience representing lenders in both secured and unsecured loan transactions, including syndicated and asset-based loan facilities.

Prior to joining Farrell Fritz, Mahler worked in the New York office of a prominent New England law firm.

Miller concentrates in real estate transactions, leasing and finance. He joined the firm's Bridgehampton office as an associate in October 2002.

Miller has significant experience in a wide range of complex real estate transactions both on the East End and in New York City. He has represented landlords and tenants, lenders and borrowers, purchasers and sellers, investors and developers, and brokers and principals in the acquisition, sale, leasing and financing of office buildings, retail complexes, shopping centers, and residential properties.

Prior to joining Farrell Fritz, Miller was affiliated with two large New York City law firms.

Vaccaro concentrates in general corporate matters, with particular emphasis on corporate finance and secured lending. She joined the firm as an associate in June 1998 and is based in the firm's Melville office.

Vaccaro counsels banks and businesses in various types of commercial lending transactions, including secured and unsecured commercial financings, leveraged acquisitions, term loans, revolving credits and syndicated facilities. She also has significant structured finance experience.

Prior to joining Farrell Fritz, Vaccaro was affiliated with a prominent New York City law firm.
